Teema: RE: E-Mail address availability: Business register: write to support

Dear Ms Renz,

According to Commercial Register Act § 12 point 5 e-mail address of the legal person is entered in the registry card. Commercial Register Act § 30 stipulates that everyone has the right to examine a registry card of the commercial register. The data of a registry card of the commercial register may be accessed via the electronic commercial register (Commercial Register Act § 31 subsection 1). Therefore, the e-mail address may not be hidden from public.

With kind regards,

Siret Neeve
Advisor of the Commercial Register

Tere! Dear Sir or Madame,

I am contacting you regarding the requirement regarding an availability of our e-mail address in public (see below). The links provided and information in data security law as well as the registry requirements have not helped us in finding any paragraph where there is shown a legal requirement to have specifically our e-mail addresses publicly. As of our understanding whilst working within the EU the postal address and information would be necessary for public only. Therefore, we would like to hide our e-mail addresses in the registry. Could you please help us and provide the legal base including paragraph for this requirement if this requirement exists?

Kind regards,
Sabrina Renz

Hello,

Thank you for the letter.

You are writing to the Center of Registers and Information Systems. We are developers of information systems and advise the technical side of using of the e-Business register and

According to the law, the data in the e-Business Register are public to everyone. e-Business Register is the official portal that includes the data of companies of all legal entities and self-employed persons registered in Estonia in a single environment. The portal includes foremost information about legal entities (e.g. private limited companies, apartment associations), but also some data regarding the natural person associated with that legal entity (e.g. data of a member of the management board, data of a shareholder).

The data of the registry card (email address of the company) of the e-Business Register that are the general information regarding the legal entity and the right of representation are available to everyone and can be indexed (i.e. can be found in search engines).

For additional questions, you can contact the Ministry of Justice.

Subject: Hide of e-mail address in public

Content: Dear Sir or Madame, Tere!

We would like to hide the e-mail address of our companies for public. How can we change this setting because at the moment we received a lot of SPAM mails after changing the address in the e-business register?

It is just the e-mail address we do not want to have in public.

Best regards,
Sabrina renz
