SKILLS for FUTURE

2th October 2025

Öpiku Conference Center, Ülemiste City, Tallinn, Estonia

Call for paper

You are invited to submit your research paper for publication and presentation consideration at the Skills for Future Conference. We encourage submissions of original research, case studies, and innovative approaches that address the evolving skills landscape and prepare individuals and organizations for success in a dynamic world.

The future of work is being shaped by rapid technological advancements, evolving societal needs, and unprecedented global challenges. This conference will explore the essential skills, strategies, and frameworks needed to thrive in this changing environment. We aim to foster dialogue and collaboration among educators, industry leaders, policymakers, and researchers to build a future-ready workforce.

This conference is designed for researchers and professionals across various industries who are interested in understanding and developing the skills needed for the future. Attendees will include educators, trainers, HR professionals, business leaders, policymakers, researchers, and students. Whether you are an advocate for lifelong learning or grappling with the skills gap, this conference will provide valuable insights into the skills that matter most and how to cultivate them effectively.
