ABOUT THIS EVENT

The system of international labour standards (ILS) set by the International Labour Organization (ILO) underpins the promotion of social justice through decent work with a human-centred-approach. The engagement of representatives of governments, employers' and workers' organizations in all stages of the system – from standard-setting to supervision on application – is key to ensuring that the ILO normative action in a world of work shaped by rapid changes remains relevant, effective, impactful and authoritative.

The International Training Centre of the ILO (ITC-ILCO), in collaboration with the International Labour Standards Department (NORMES) and the field Offices, promotes the active, full and effective participation of ILO tripartite constituents in the normative cycle, by streaming a series of webinars run in the context of the International Labour Standards Academy – the flagship event on the ILO normative system. These webinars feature members of the ILO supervisory bodies and subject-matter specialists from the ILO Secretariat.

PARTICIPANTS

- Government officials responsible for matters relating to ILS, including the compliance with standards-related obligations laid down by the ILO Constitution.
- Representatives of employers' and workers' organizations responsible for ILO matters, in particular members of national tripartite committees.
- Officials of the ILO and the United Nations system.
