Data release: ASCOR assessment of your country by the LSE Transition Pathway Initiative Centre

Dear Sir/Madam,

We are writing to follow up on the invitation to provide feedback on an assessment of your country as part of the Assessing Sovereign Climate-related Opportunities and Risks (ASCOR) project. After this feedback process, we have today published the assessment results for 70 countries including your country.

- The ASCOR tool has been updated online, which displays the assessment data for 70 countries.
- We will be publishing the State of Transition in Sovereigns 2024: Tracking national climate action for investors report, which is based on these assessment results, on 26 November 2024. The report will be available on our publications webpage.

We reiterate our sincere thanks for any feedback and involvement provided thus far. The feedback process is important so that the progress that your country is making in tackling climate change can be adequately showcased. We welcome suggestions on how to improve the feedback process during the upcoming 2025 research cycle.

Thank you for your kind collaboration.

Best wishes,

ASCOR Project
