This Global Meeting will be an opportunity for Member States to interact and exchange knowledge with the global EMT Network and other national EMTs or focal points from their region and around the world, contributing to the building or strengthening of EMT surge response capacities in the country.

- to help advance the science and operations of surge response capacities through participant presentations of leading-edge research and evidence, and of new innovations and technologies;
- to set and galvanize collective actions at global, regional and national levels towards achieving the goal and objectives of the EMT 2030 Strategy, particularly in strengthening national surge response capacities and systems for all countries.
